INTRODUCING PNG IMR'S NEW WEBSITE

The Papua New Guinea Institute of Medical Research has received a "Christmas present" in the form of a new website.

Director Peter Siba said the upgraded website is now up and running as a result of much hard work by the dedicated IMR staff.

"Material about our research is often complex and confusing to the lay person," Professor Siba said.

"We want our readers to be able to grasp what we do and how good we are at it regardless of the amount of time they spent in science classes or indeed at school," he said.

"Our aim was to address problems with structure and content and to make the site easier to navigate and easier to understand.

"Its strength is in its content rather than in employing fancy features that can be difficult or impossible to download in many parts of PNG.

"Of course, any website is a work in progress and we welcome suggestions for future upgrades.

"We encourage you to go to www.pngimr.org.pg and learn more about our work," Professor Siba said.
